I don't think you are a Grinch, but I do think that you are not giving your clients good advice. I work with many small/midsize nonprofits, have done a lot of "social media fundraising" over the years (raising over $250,000 for a small grass roots charity just through social channels) and work with a network of community foundations that are hosting giving days.

Why Your Non-Profit Should Avoid #GivingTuesday Like the ...

Should your nonprofit accept every gift that comes its way? It's hard to say 'no thank you!' to donors, but sometimes...that's the more prudent path. There are some kinds of gifts (think horses, houses, and hospitals, as just 3 examples) that your nonprofit simply may not want to - or should not - accept. Some gifts may result in more hassle and expense than benefit to the

Save the Chimps This simple fundraising appeal came from Save the Chimps, an organization that rescues chimpanzees and gives them a happy home for the rest of their lives. This letter came on simple letterhead and focused on one thing...food. I love the way the letter uses statistics 1,200 bananas ... and how it includes the names of individual animals (Pumpkin, Cheetah and Allie).
